GT106 GROWING WATER PLANTS, GT322 POND FISH, GT338 ABC OF WATER GARDENING, GT339 SEASONAL POND CARE, ALGAE, GT126

DEPTH IN POND
Is from the top of the pot to the water level.
Moist means ok planted in garden in a moist area

WINTER LOCATION FOR UP TO ZONE 6
The recommended location to safely accommodate the plant through the winter ↓ 40 cm = from top of pot.

WATER PLANTS ARE DIVIDED INTO THREE GROUPS
OXYGENATOR PLANTS [water clarifiers] they eliminate algae by using nutrients that otherwise algae would use.
MARGINAL PLANTS occur around the edge of the pond [usually on a shelf] cleaning and shading the water.
LILIES and LOTUS will provide surface coverage, starving algae of sun nutrients.

GUIDE TO SUCCESSFUL LILIES AND LOTUS

WATER LILIES AND LOTUS ARE HEAVY FEEDERS. WATER PLANT FERTILIZER TABLETS SHOULD BE USED MONTHLY OR BI-MONTHLY DURING THE GROWING SEASON . ALL WATER PLANTS REQUIRE FOOD TO FLOURISH AND SURVIVE YEAR AFTER YEAR. For winter care see Green Thumb Guide on Lilies & Lotus #107

WHY WATER PLANTS ARE SO IMPORTANT

Algae Control

The most effective way to achieve an algae free pond is to balance the pond by planting the proper number and varieties of plants. This will utilize the pond's nutrients and provide protection from the sun's elements.

The recommended number of plants for the average water garden is:

- 50 – 70% surface coverage
- 1 oxygenator plant for every 2 sq. feet of open surface.
- Selection of marginal plants to soften edges and add contrast and texture.
- Grasses create gas exchange areas for winter survival of fish.

Factors affecting recommended number of plants :

- A high fish population would require you to have more oxygenator plants due to extra nutrients from the fish, or a filter as well. Recommended fish population per square foot surface area: 1" of goldfish, ½" of Koi
- Shallow Ponds (less than 24" (60 cm) deep) in sun would require more plants due to the pond heating up.
- Ponds in areas receiving less than full sun will require less plants, due to reduced effect of the sun's elements.
- Ponds with heavily agitated surfaces require less surface coverage plants because the sun's elements are blocked by the ripple effect in the water.

Fish and Wildlife Protection

Plants will provide shelter for fish and other wildlife. Marginal plants at the edge of a pond will aid in a sense of security and protection for the fish. The upright foliage and flowers of plants will visually hide activity create a physical barrier from predators.

Marginal plant containers provide fish, especially babies, with cover to hide behind and provide stimulation by providing areas to explore and surfaces to graze on.

Plants that float like Water Hyacinth and Lettuce, and floating-leaved plants like Water Lilies and Lotus, provide fish with protection from the hot sun and areas to hide from predators like herons and raccoons. These plants provide a more secure environment for the fish so they are happier and healthier.

Frogs and other amphibians will need plants around to mimic their natural setting. They will hide beneath and behind marginal leaves and sit in the sun looking for food on floating leaves.

Contrast, texture and aesthetics

Plants are used in ponds to tie water features into the garden around it.

They provide a vertical architectural balance to the smooth surface of water.

They soften edges that otherwise might be bold, such as rocks or sudden drops.

They hide unsightly excess liner or uneven pond edges.

They provide any gardener with the chance to grow and enjoy an exotic area of plants that will only thrive under wet conditions, for example, the sensational flowers of water lilies. These plants bloom all season long, come in every colour of the rainbow, some bloom at night and some are so intensely fragrant you will smell them upon entering your garden. The Lotus plant is one of the most marveled of plants that you could have in your own water garden. Not to mention the large 30" (75 cm) leaves on the Elephant Ear (Taro) or the Giant Horsetail with its stiff erect banded stems.

How to bare root water plants for growing in rocks in pond or stream

Potted plants need the soil washed away from their roots. Place the roots in water with a selection of small to medium stones to hold in place.
